CAN NOT RESTORE PEACE IN MEXICO

OBSERVERS DO NOT BELIEVE THAT HUERTA CAN RESTORE TRANQUILITY.

MEXICO CITY, June 14.—In the three months General Huerta has been president of Mexico he has had no substantial headway against the rebels, according to the opinions of close and impartial observers of the situation in this republic. Unless there is made a radical change in the conduct of the government's campaign against its enemies, or unless the rebels become much weaker than they are today, foreign observers believe that Huerta will have great difficulty in restoring peace to Mexico. As for the rebels, they have grown steadily stronger since General Huerta became president, and now there is scarcely a state in which their mobile columns have not been operating in defiance of the government's superior armament and organization.

"The country is plunged in anarchy," said "El Diario," a pro-government paper, recently. "Brigandage holds sway in a large portion of the national territory, defeated in one place, the bands reappear in another and they carry their audacity to the point of defying the federal divisions in their headquarters." The usual expression in the local papers, however, is of a different character. For the most part they reflect the carefully studied optimistic tone of the officers at the National palace, who make much of defeats administered here and there, and often fail to make any mention at all of rebel victories.

Three Campaigns

The military operations of the government have been divided into three general campaigns, one in the south against the followers of Zapata, conducted by General Juvenal Robles, another whose center is Guaymas, in Sonora, and the third, directed from Monterrey against the rebels operating in the states of Coahuila, Nuevo Leon and Tamaulipas. In addition to these defined campaigns the government troops are riding here and there over a dozen states, forcing their way from one point to another, only often to find, when they arrive at their destination, that the rebels have cut in behind them, or have torn the country to pieces on either side of their line of march.

In the south Robles promised to exterminate in a few weeks the "bandits" led by Emiliano Zapata. He was instructed by the War Department to use the methods of Weyler in Cuba; to concentrate in a few points all non-combatants, and then devastate with fire and cannon the remaining villages and towns, kill his prisoners, except those whose physical strength appeared to him as material for the regular army, but before Robles could get his plan under way, Zapata was attacking him in his headquarters, and since then it has been an open question which side would be the victim of the Weyler method. The region to the south already is practically devastated. Haciendas on which enormous sugar crops formerly were grown are today fast returning to jungle growth, and the warfare in which the followers of Zapata have engaged now for almost three years appears to be causing them to revert to some wild and savage type.

The Guaymas campaign began well. General Medina Barron marched forth, but only to return after defeat, and it was almost two weeks after the battle of Santa Rosa before the government admitted the reverse, meanwhile characterizing as untrue the press dispatches from the border.

The campaign directed from Monterrey has resulted in the recall of General Tracy Aubert who, apparently, was unable to suppress the rebels under command of Venustiano Carranza or even to retake and reopen the railroad between Monterrey and Laredo, Texas. His successor has done no better. The rebels have extended their field of operations until small towns from the Gulf coast to Chihuahua are entered, seemingly, almost at will.

Conditions in the Central states are little if any better. In its desire to clear up the "border situation," and open the railroads in order that the United States may have a higher opinion of the general situation, the government has confined most of its energies to the two northern campaigns.

Opposed to the rebels is the army of Huerta, a more numerous organization than any Mexico has ever seen. But in its ranks as "volunteers" are thousands of men "recruited" from the jails of the country and from prisoners captured in battle. The recent success of the government in securing a loan, however, will enable it to pay its soldiers, buy ammunition and other supplies, and otherwise conduct its military campaigns with greater energy. As a result conditions in Mexico are bound to be disturbed for some time to come.

Anti-American Sentiment

The press of the capital, which bristled with anti-Americanism in the early days of May following recognition by several nations and the failure of the Washington government to fall in line, has suddenly changed front. Wiser counsel seems to have prevailed, and now a conciliatory tone is distinctly noticeable. A campaign to bring about a boycott of American products has fallen flat, and a proposed popular demonstration of disapproval of Washington's non-recognition of the Huerta government has been called off. Today there are no evidences of any anti-American agitation in Mexico City.

LIVE NEWS FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 14.—Governor Sulzer's spectacular fight for a direct primary law, in which he has been aided by Colonel Roosevelt, William R. Hearst and other noted political leaders of New York, will be brought to a climax when the State Legislature convenes in extraordinary session Monday to decide the fate of the measure.

President Wilson, if his other engagements permit, will go to Philadelphia Tuesday to speak at the unveiling of the New Jersey memorial erected at Valley Forge. Former President Taft, with President Hadley of Yale, will lay the cornerstone of the new Yale Coliseum on Monday.

The currency commission of the American Bankers' Association will meet in Atlantic City Tuesday to exchange views on the subject of currency legislation. The results of the discussion will be submitted to the United States senate. Other important meetings of the week will include the annual convention of the National Editorial Association, at Colorado Springs; the annual meeting of the American Medical Association, at Minneapolis; the annual meeting of the Hotel Men's Mutual Benefit Association at Louisville, and the annual convention of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union at Rogersville, Tenn.

Other events that will figure more or less prominently in the news of the week will be the consecration of Rev. Samuel G. Habcock, as suffragan bishop of the Massachusetts Episcopal diocese, the celebration at Wheeling of the semi-centennial of West Virginia statehood, the democratic primary in Arkansas to select a candidate for governor, the Yale-Harvard boat races at New London, the intercollegiate regatta at Poughkeepsie, and the annual commencement exercises at Yale, Harvard, Cornell, Brown and other of the large colleges of the country.

The celebration of the silver jubilee of Emperor William's reign promises to be the big event of the week in Europe. Other events in foreign lands will include the convention of the International Woman's Suffrage Alliance at Budapest, the meeting of the Pan-Presbyterian Council at Aberdeen, the opening of the International Horse Show in London, the German elimination trials for the coming German-American amateur class regatta, the British open golf championship tournament, the International Forestry Congress in Paris, and Argentina's celebration of the 300th anniversary of the founding of the University of Cordoba, the oldest university in the western hemisphere.
